

The Department of Biology, Geology, and Environmental Science at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga is looking for a non-tenure track instructor with the title of Visiting Lecturer in Biology for a 1-year, non-renewable appointment. The new hire will be responsible for teaching introductory biology lecture and lab in the 2022-2023 academic year. Specifically, the lecturer will teach large lectures of introductory biology in both face-to-face and online asynchronous modalities and small introductory biology lab sections totaling 12 credit hours per semester. We are looking for a dynamic and engaging instructor. Minimum qualifications include a master's degree in biology or a related field and the ability to start on August 1, 2022. Salary is $40,000 for those with M.S. and $45,000 for those with Ph.D. This is in addition to benefits. To apply, please send the following to Dr. Gretchen Potts, Interim Department Head, Gretchen-Potts@utc.edu:

- A letter of interest discussing your biology teaching experience
- An updated CV
- Undergraduate and graduate transcripts (unofficial will suffice at this time)
- Names, relationship, and contact information (email and phone) for three references who can comment on your teaching ability/experience

Applicants will be evaluated as they are received until the position is filled.
